Legends of Ayoma is a combination of survival and RPG-style action game, set in the Far Eastern country of Ayoma. The land of Ayoma has been divided into small, isolated nations, ruled by powerful guilds. In order to reduce the length of time required for an enemy guild to spread itself throughout the nation, the country is being dismantled into smaller territories. Players can choose to play one of four guilds and enter the service of the guild that they believe in. The future of their nation and the difference between life and death depend on their decisions! (Translation is totally optional. I'll provide any translations I come across, but it's up to you what to do with the information.) So there we go! This was a pretty quick and easy translation. It's a shame that I don't speak Japanese, but I think that people are going to like this. Hope you can put it to good use! ----- -Editor's note: I did not translate the background images, nor did I create any of the translations. The translations were done by a buddy of mine over on the RPG forum. While she did a great job, she had never seen RPG Maker before, so this is a proof-of-concept. I appreciate her going through all of this so that I can get better; please follow her on YouTube over there. - A few caveats: * I recommend saving this before applying. It's about 80% complete. (I've added the images over here) * The names of most of the items are in English, I'm sure I got some things mixed up. Questions and/or comments? If you have any questions or feedback about this, I'll be around. About This Game: Legends of Ayoma is a combination of survival and RPG-style action game, set in the Far Eastern country of Ayoma. Tackles Miami Dolphins Watson, DeShone By The Associated Press June 29, 1999 BUFFALO, N.Y. - Denver cornerback Pooh Wright's shoelace was hanging out and so was his mood. It was fourth-and-7, the laces were tangled and the Buffalo Bills were about to attempt a 50-yard field goal that would have sent them to overtime. Except at the time, Wright was a kid who became a man, and he was taking the field for the first time since suffering a fractured ankle in a Dec. 14 victory over Carolina. It was a celebration for his family, including his six children, and Wright felt good about his new responsibilities. "I've been on the sidelines over the past three weeks - very disappointing. I didn't want my kids or my family to see me out there," Wright said after Buffalo's 26-24 overtime loss to Miami. "I just felt the need to be out there as a father. For me, it took a lot of prayer and I felt like God was telling me I needed to go out and play." A big smile got on his face as he recalled his run and his jump to catch the ball. He zipped his suede shoes back up and hoisted that arm up even higher. With the Bills (2-8) facing a two-point deficit and the clock ticking down to their final 10-second try, the match-up with Miami (9-1) was meant to be a three-man contest at the line of scrimmage. But Wright didn't know that. He watched the snap and heard a boom. Turned out, the safety was wide open and he was waiting. "The play before that was the hardest catch I've ever made in my life," Wright said. "Catching that ball against Bob so quick was tough." Rehab has been tough, but because of my faith in God, I've been able to look around and feel at peace. That's what I'm doing right now. As the receiver jogged off the field, his mother was clapping. His father was hugging Wright from behind and both were weeping. Wright snapped off a thumbs up sign and started making his way down to the sidelines, where friend and Bills personnel director Dantonio Smith was waiting for him. Two weeks after signing as a free agent from the University of Buffalo, the 6-foot-2, 188-pound Wright is watching the miracle that took place in Miami from the hills of his hometown of Buffalo
