On that note, you dont even have the convenience of a bluetooth keyboard and just using the touch screen to dictate and then editing after a conversion is complete. This is inconsistent and annoying. Thankfully, Dragon does have an alternative with Dragon Dictate. This lets you dictate into a microphone with no need for a keyboard or touchscreen. Unfortunately, there is a problem with this. It doesnt have many of the more advanced features of Dragon for Mac, like the ability to look up words and switch between languages. Dictation takes a long time if its your first attempt to get it going, but it can be very accurate. But then again, youll probably have to get used to the different way to type. What version of Dragon I am using is 6.0.8 build 12914. I have been trying to figure out how to put this thing back to where it was. Sometimes I get an error saying the license number is not valid. When it asks for a new serial number, I put in a number that I know did work and it tells me that the serial is not valid. I have contacted Nuance, but they cant give me a new serial number since the newest license is not associated with the operating system. Here is an email they sent me: I have a computer setup with High Sierra 10.13.2. Over the past few months, I noticed that Dragon software which never had any problems, suddenly stop working. Would you point me to the thread where I can find step-by-step instructions how to solve the problem, and do you have a link to the bug report, for me to see how I can try to solve the problem? When I contacted Nuance, they told me that I need to use a different serial number to recover the license. I told them that I used serial number 11111111-22222222 and they said that they cannot generate a new serial number because the operating system is no longer supported.

In the Dragon Desktop speech recognition software, so far we have not noticed a problem like the one that has been reported here. We have updated and tested all the files on our servers at least once a week. We have also notified our partners of any ongoing issues on their websites. There are some issues with Beta downloads that we will try to mitigate and we will try to find a better way to resolve the issues than what we have done so far. I just bought a new MacBook Pro (before apple switches to their proprietary M1 chips). Im not clear if the new version of professional Dragon will work well on Bootcamp or Parallel Spoke to Nuance. Other than we dont support it, it was like talking to a kid on drugs when it came to trying to drill down on if it would actually work! I understand that they dont support the PC version working on Mac anymore (although, I cant help but be bothered when a customer based has invested in using a software, and then the company suddenly up and throw them off the bus! Welcome to everyone who uses DPI 15.6. We are wondering if it would be better to keep it for those who want it or to not release it. We have noticed that it is holding users back when moving Windows 10 to 1809 (although, it's been a while since we've actually seen someone with 1809). Microsoft is expected to release 1809 in the next couple of months. We also note that you still cant connect to Microsoft through your dragon in the Browser. So, you can keep working with the older version but let me mention one other small issue that I'm having with DPI 15.6. Sec8ef588b
